Hello Everyone,

It's that magical time of year when reduced daylight and dropping temperatures in Canada have stimulated various flora and fauna into their dormant phases. Energy is focused down and inward with a familiar slowing that invites reflection on the question, What is it that's being emptied within me, making space for something new to develop and be nurtured during this season?

At a time when moving with the natural world nudges us toward introspection, many are pushing through and busily shopping and preparing for time with family and friends. Can the holiday spirit of giving and spreading goodwill, evoke a generosity of spirit that calls us to remember our union with all of life, venturing well beyond the material world?

It can be challenging when expectations and emotions run high and that which motivates us is beyond our conscious awareness. As students and practitioners of Healing Touch we learn to come home to ourselves. We're given tools for self-care and healing on a path of wholeness.

Is there a better season for opening to the potential of new growth? Experiencing the societal push to busyness in contrast to nature's inward draw reminds us to look at what's important and why we choose what we do.

Just as leaves naturally release and fall from trees when their life energy is waning, beliefs that were once unconscious fall away when they've come to light and filled their purpose. This creates space and opportunities to be more fully ourselves.

Jeanne Balcom, retired nurse, CHTP/I, RCRT, nd, lives in Dieppe, NB and took her first HT Level 1 class in 2002. She was inspired when she envisioned incorporating HT into her hospital nursing and from then on wanted to share it with others. This led to becoming a Certified HT Instructor and for over 10 years she's been passionately promoting and teaching HT on the East Coast, particularly amongst nurses. Jeanne is

The notion of a separate organism is clearly an abstraction, as is also its boundary. Underlying all this is unbroken wholeness even though our civilization has developed in such a way as to strongly emphasize the separation into parts.

bilingual and offers Level 1-4 classes in both French and English (with over 125 Level 1 classes alone taught so far.)

With the growth of HT in NB Jeanne is thrilled that two bilingual (French/English) CHTP are eager to become Instructors by the fall of 2017. So much so that she sat in on their Level 1 Instructor Training in Colorado in October in order to best support their training back in NB. Some delightful new ideas are already being incorporated into her teaching as a result.

Jeanne has passionately volunteered her time in various capacities in the HT Community at large including mentoring many students through to Level 5 and certification. This year it all comes together in her role as the Chairperson for the 2017 Healing Touch Assoc. of Canada Conference.

The Organizing Committee is putting together a dynamic event with the intention of increasing awareness of the uses and benefits of holistic approaches within our healthcare system. By incorporating integrative therapies we support the enhancement of the body's innate healing abilities. Embracing the union of body, mind and spirit opens doorways to new potential.

Creating the Wave of Wellness Conference goals:

- Increase the importance of a healthy and well-balanced body/ mind/ spirit connection.
- To promote health and wellness amongst 'healers' and health care professionals.
- Ignite one's passion for self-care and healing arts.
- Increase awareness of the study of Healing Touch curriculum.
